Today we will be...

Designing a map, referring to key human features.

Back

Next

We have learnt a lot about maps, but today we are going to think about the different types of key features we might find on maps.

What do you think a human key feature might be?

What do you think a natural key feature might be?

Think, pair and share your ideas.

Maps are made up of human and natural features.

A human feature is something that is man-made, such as buildings and roads.

A natural feature is is something that has occurred naturally such as a river or mountain.

Do you think a school building is a human feature or a natural feature?

River

Ocean

Mountains

These are all natural key features.

They are not man-made!

Can you think of any more natural key features?

We all live in Spring Town and we need your help!

How could you build a great place to live?

The park is too small!

It smells!

Can you help us by designing a new town?
