I separated out leaves based on their size, points and lobes and colour too.

		These are large size with few points but multiple lobes.
		These were smaller size, green and yellow colour, very few points and tiny lobes.
		These were medium size, with multiple spiky points and very clear lobes.
		These were very small, just one middle straight lobe and no points.
		These were yellow/cream in colour, small size and very clear multiple lobes.

I also observed how plants release oxygen as droplets by putting leaf into the bowl and kept it in sun for around hour time. We saw too many little bubbles on the leaf. It was fun to see them.
