Peripatetic Music Lessons Autumn Term 2021

Guitar with Andy Hawkings

Andy is a QTS teacher with 17 years of teaching experience and is currently the secondary music teacher at Avanti Park.

Andy teaches all styles of guitar, following both the Rockschoool guitar syllabus and the Trinity Classical guitar syllabus, teaching students to read standard music notation along the way. Alternatively, Andy also delivers bespoke, tailor made lessons that utilise his complete knowledge of the fretboard, his love of singing and his self-developed number note method of notation. For young guitarists, Andy always starts with the fantastic books - Guitar Basics and Guitar Basics Repertoire.

Andy has developed a very clear method for teaching the guitar online, giving the student everything they need to feel in complete control of their learning and ensuring that lessons can continue, should anything happen in these uncertain times.

Singing with Anne Bourne

I am a passionate, professional and highly qualified singing teacher. I use a unique, holistic approach with my students that is gentle yet dynamic and imaginative, which develops a high level of vocal technique and musicality, builds confidence and above all is a nurturing guide to finding one's true voice. My experience as a professional opera singer performing in the UK and abroad, with 20 years of working with, and studying vocal production has provided me with invaluable knowledge and expertise, which adds colour and dimension to the way I help my students to sing and use their voice. I teach all ages and abilities and create a relaxed environment. Working towards exams, auditions, festivals and sheer enjoyment are goals that are most welcome. I am always amazed by the power of the human voice and its ability to connect. I look forward to sharing my knowledge and enthusiasm with you. I am fully insured and DBS checked.
