

Focus on... Art

#145

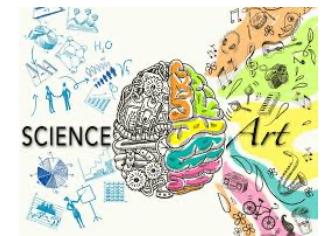

On this day...

in 1896, Frederick Coulton Waugh was born in Cornwall, England. He was a cartoonist, painter, teacher and author, best known for his illustration work on comics.

Did you know...

When art and science are studied together it is clear to see the impact one has on the other. A great deal of creativity is required to make scientific breakthroughs and art is just as often an expression of (or a product of) scientific knowledge.

Go explore...

Leonardo da Vinci was a famous artist, but he was also a scientist. Can you name one thing he invented?

Picture this...

The Louvre Museum in Paris is almost 2 miles long with 300 rooms filled with 380,000 pieces of art.
